5.3 Indicative HO Places list

The following list schedules places of potential local heritage value within the district. These places illustrate important historic themes as identified in the TEH and are considered of sufficient integrity to illustrate the stories of Horsham.

Places are either listed as an individual HO, or where common heritage attributes exist, as a possible HO precinct. Significant Landscape Overlays (SLOs) are also identified, as a means of potentially better managing the remnant heritage fabric or feature within the overall landscape.

Some ruinous sites are also of potential archaeological value.

Potential HO Precincts are summarised thus:

Albert St (Residential) The early 20thC dwellings in Albert and Anderson Streets are of consistent age, scale and architectural style, illustrating the northern growth of Horsham suburbs during this period. Allotments are generous and streets laid out reflecting ‘garden city’ planning ideals for early 20th century suburbs.

Bowen St (Residential) The early twentieth century timber plank villas and bungalows of this street are consistent in character and illustrate suburban growth near the Horsham hospital.

Dooen Rd (Residential) The Dooen Road was an important link between the agricultural hinterland and Horsham city. The early 20th century dwellings which were built along this road reflect this importance in allotment, scale and architectural embellishment. Dwellings in Bowden and Searle Streets also reflect this theme and the theme represented in Albert Street.

Edward Rd (Residential) This precinct is similar to the Albert Street precinct in character, but houses tend to be less embellished in style and many may reflect ‘state bank bungalow’ schemes of the period.

Firebrace St (commercial) Firebrace Street is the commercial heart of Horsham, from the 1880s to today. The core of buildings identified reflect the establishment, growth and scale of the town of Horsham and it’s role in the development of the Wimmera region.

Natimuk Rd (Residential) As with Dooen Road, Natimuk Road was an important link between Horsham and the farming communities in nearby irrigation colonies and the substantial town of Natimuk. Dwellings are of substantial scale and many date from the inter-war period in design and construction.

Railway Ave (Residential) The Railway Terrace precinct is small, but illustrative of suburban development south of the railway line, from the late 19th the early 20th Century period.

Jung (town) The town of Jung remains as a snapshot of a late 19th Century town of small scale, based on rail services and general supply. The town is in decline today, but provides a valuable illustration within the district of a smaller town supporting Horsham from the 1870s to today.

Natimuk (town) Natimuk is a linear town of substantial heritage value. The town was established in the 1880s and the good stock of intact buildings provide a valuable illustration of a larger town of the district of the 1880-1915 period.
